SWAP BEGINS SUNDAY

Pact Is Reached For Ransom Of Cuban Captives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 1,113 Cuban invasion prisoners will be ransomed for food and medical supplies beginning Sunday morning — two days before Christmas — the Red Cross announced Friday.

The Red Cross said New York lawyer James Donovan reached a signed agreement in Havana late Friday with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro to trade $53 million worth of food, drugs and medical supplies for the prisoners taken in the April, 1961, Bay of Pigs invasion.

The African Pilot, a cargo ship now loading in Port Everglades, Fla., will leave for Havana by 5 p.m. EST Saturday. The prisoners will be flown to Miami in a four-plane shuttle as soon as the first of the goods reaches Havana.

SPEED ESSENTIAL

The first plane is scheduled to leave Miami for Havana — also carrying a load of ransom goods — at 6 a.m. EST Sunday.

The announcement was made in a joint statement by Gen. Lucius Clay, chairman of the Cuban Families Advisory Committee, and E. Roland Harriman, chairman of the American National Red Cross.

According to the agreement, the Red Cross said, the prisoners taken in the abortive April 19 invasion will be freed when at least 20 per cent of the list of goods Castro demanded is in Cuban hands.

"Speed is essential," the Red Cross said, "to insure that the prisoners will be back among their loved ones by Christmas."

The list Castro demanded, big as a metropolitan telephone book, is being filled by donations from American industry. The transportation expenses will boost the total ransom price to well over $70 million. The first shipment will carry more than $11 million worth of the goods.

More than 2,500 tons of food and medicine have been poured into Florida in recent days as ransom for the prisoner exchange.

Bombs Explode At Yule Party; No One Injured

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two pipe bombs were exploded Friday during a children's Christmas party in the Fifth Ave. offices of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. Police said there was a "definite possibility" pro-Castro elements were responsible.

About 70 youngsters were at the party, but no one was injured. Shattered glass sprayed a hallway when the apparently home made bombs were exploded.

The explosions came within minutes of each other. One of the bombs was placed behind a water cooler to give maximum effect of flying glass.

A police officer at the scene in midtown Manhattan said a "definite possibility" existed that the bombs were planted by agents loyal to Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

"We haven't even got a motive," said assistant chief inspector Anthony O'Connell, who headed the police investigation. Emergency trucks and fire apparatus sped to the Commonwealth's offices after the bombs exploded. Crowds of Christmas shoppers gathered in front of the building.

O'Connell said the bombs were about four inches long and about one and one-half inches in diameter. Both of the explosives were planted in hallways of the office. None of the children were in the halls at the time of the blast.

Decorations Winners Named

Mrs. A. E. Fontana, 2905 Lee Ave., has won first place in the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce's Christmas home lighting contest.

Bobby Sadler, chairman of the committee in charge of the contest, said judging was held Friday night.

Barney Lipscomb, 601 Eason Place, was the second place winner in the contest.

Sadler said Mrs. Fontana will be awarded a plaque by the Jaycees at a luncheon to be held in February. He also added that the Jaycees plan to make the contest, held this year for the first time, an annual event.

500 Search In Vain For Missing Boy

Sobbing Mother Fears Child, 3, Kidnap Victim

PEKIN, Ill. (UPI)—More than 500 volunteers tramped over nine square miles of town and country Friday in an unsuccessful search for a 3-year-old boy who disappeared three days ago, and the child's mother sobbed out fears that he had been kidnaped.

The army of searchers called off their hunt at nightfall with nothing to show for their efforts but a bit of red knit material that might have come from his cap and a handkerchief stained with what authorities believed was blood.

CALLS FOR DIVERS

The distraught mother of blond-haired, blue-eyed Mike Ivey said she believed "My baby has been picked up by someone and taken away."

Tazewell County Sheriff George Sweetser said he was "not ruling out foul play" but he leaned to the belief that the boy had tumbled into the murky waters of a gravel pit and drowned.

Sweetser said the search, which had been under way for three days and grew to massive proportions Friday, would turn back Saturday to the gravel pit. He called for 12 to 15 scuba divers to search the pit.

"I'm sure Mike is still alive," 26-year-old Pat Ivey said Friday night. "I believe my baby has been picked up by someone and taken away."

"At first I thought my baby fell into a hole and was covered up. Then I thought he might have gone into someone's garage and closed the door. But I was told searchers went over every inch of ground. If Mike was around here someone would have found a shoe, a glove or something he was wearing that morning Tuesday when he disappeared shortly after she let him out to play."

A searcher found what Mrs. Ivey said looked like part of the knit cap the lad was wearing, but the mother said she could not positively identify it.

SANTA DELIVERS

Girl Gets Special Yule Wish Fulfilled

NEW YORK (AP)—Take a 9-year-old girl with an unselfish dream; a retired bank president to read with his fingers when he who likes to play Santa Claus and a little blind boy and you have a Christmas story.

Cathy Sprenger, of Bellerose, Queens, is the girl with a special wish for Christmas which she wished passing on to a Long Island department store Santa. Girls her age begin to view Santa with some doubt.

But she climbed upon Edward Hudson's knee anyway last week as he sat on Santa's throne. She told him there was only one thing she really wanted — equipment to write Braille, the touch language of the blind.

"Why?" asked Santa. Because, Cathy explained, she has a very special friend — Armond Bakalian, 9—who has never

Yule Traffic Rush Begins; Many To Die

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation started a four-day holiday observance of Christmas Friday night, reminded of accident perils that could cost 1,000 lives.

With ample celebration time on their hands, many Americans planned to drive during the long weekend, and the National Safety Council estimated that heavy traffic could kill 650 to 750 before midnight Tuesday.

ROADS SLIPPERY

The weather took what appeared to be a potentially deadly hand in the season's activity. Slippery road conditions developed in a wide band of snow, sleet and freezing rain from the lower Ohio Valley to the East Coast states.

A new flood of subzero air, on tap for invasion of the Northern Plains Saturday, brought its own special menaces, including that of fire from defective heating systems.

Across the nation, police and medical facilities mobilized for a spurt in accidents injuries and deaths.

The Associated Press began a count of accident fatalities at 6 p.m., local time, Friday night, which will cover the 102 hours until midnight Tuesday, Dec. 25.

The fewest traffic deaths recorded for a four-day Christmas holiday since World War II was 535 in 1951. The highest number was in 1956 when a record for any holiday weekend of the same length was set—706 killed.

In 1956, the Christmas holidays took an over-all accident fatality toll of 884, including those who died in fires and from all types of accidents.

But the greatest over-all accident death toll was that of the four-day Fourth of July period in 1961 when 924 died.

GOODFELLOWS TOTAL

Christmas Fund Draws Near Aim

Goodfellows nudged nearer to their $6000 goal Friday but still lacked enough to assure total success for the drive. Leaders urged a "last minute spurt" to put the Christmas fund over the top.

Friday's contributions brought the total up to $5688.24 — $311.76 short of the needed amount.

And along with the contributions letters asking for Christmas aid for Twin Cities' residents continued to pour in to Goodfellows headquarters.

6 CHILDREN

"I am writing for a family of six children whose father is away from home and the mother has been sick and off from work. Anything you can give will be thankfully appreciated," one letter says.

Without Goodfellows aid, this family and many others in the Twin Cities will be without on Christmas day. Contributions to the fund should be sent to Goodfellows in care of the News-Star-World Pub. Corp.

Another family writes, "Just a few lines to see if you would help us a little for Christmas. We get a welfare check but after bills are paid, we don't have anything left for Christmas. I have 2 sisters, and one brother. My daddy is not able to work and my mother has to take care of my daddy."

And the aged come in for their share of Christmas gloom also. "I am writing for an old man that is in need and not able to work. He can't get on the welfare. He would appreciate anything as he is in bad need. Thanks for anything."

Recipients of Goodfellows aid never get cash grants — only food, clothing and toys for the young. And there is no overhead connected with the drive. All work is done voluntarily.

Friday's high was 64 with the overnight low recorded at 46. Although light rain fell most of Friday and on into the night, none is predicted today.

MOTHER STILL RETAINS HOPE

Son In Coma 5 Years

GREENVILLE, Ky. (AP) — In the eyes of 3-year-old Farrell Vincent, his big brother is a still form on a hospital bed in a corner of their home.

It's been that way for as long as the youngster can remember. His brother, Franklin, who will be 26 Saturday, was involved in an auto accident in 1957 that drew a dark drape over his mind. The curtain is still there despite removal of a blood clot from Franklin's brain.

His mother, Mrs. Raymond Vincent, says doctors have told her, "Frankie might regain consciousness at any time 'but he wouldn't be the Frankie he used to be.'"

A robust 6-footer at the time of the accident, Frankie is now a mere shell of skin and bone. He hasn't said a word during the five years of unconsciousness.

There are times when he is more restless than others. At these times, which his mother describes as being "awake," Frankie moves about and rolls his head. Sometimes he opens his eyes and looks around but apparently sees nothing. Since Frankie returned home, there has been a 24-hour-a-day watch kept over him. Day or night his father, Raymond, his mother, or one of his 12 brothers and sisters maintains the vigil.

Every two hours someone turns the motionless form to prevent bed sores and make him more comfortable. Frankie is fed every four hours through a tube into his stomach.

He takes a special vitamin-rich liquid food, strained baby foods and fruit juices. To keep up his resistance to disease Frankie is given antibiotics with his food.

Monthly drug store bills for medicines, special foods and vitamins run anywhere from $80 to $100. Still, things no longer look as dark as they did after Frankie was brought home from the hospital.

The bills totaled about $7,000. Vincent was making arrangements to sell his farm to pay

The first day of winter is expected to be mostly overcast in the Twin Cities and the temperature is predicted to be a little cooler.

The high today is expected to be near 50 with the low tonight forecast near 40.

Friday's high was 64 with the overnight low recorded at 46. Although light rain fell most of Friday and on into the night, none is predicted today.

Jail Terms, Big Fines Possible In Court Action

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The Justice Department asked a federal appeals court Friday to hold Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr. in criminal contempt for blocking enrollment of Negro James H. Meredith at the University of Mississippi last September.

The appeals court ordered the Justice Department to do this. If the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals holds them in criminal contempt, it could mean jail terms and large fines for the governor and lieutenant governor.

UP TO JUDGES

Penalties are almost unlimited—at the discretion of the judges—in some contempt cases.

The court decided whether the defendants get a jury trial. At Jackson, Miss., Barnett and Johnson both declined comment on the development.

The Justice Department application was signed by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, Asst. Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall and John Doar, an attorney for the Justice Department.

Barnett stopped Meredith twice and Johnson turned him back once in the tense days of late September when the Negro, armed with court orders and guarded by federal marshals, tried to knock down more than a century of whites-only tradition at the university.

The university finally enrolled Meredith the morning of Oct. 1. In the waning hours of a night of rioting that killed two men and injured scores of federal marshals, students and others.

The Justice Department listed four counts, charging that: 1. Barnett, after being notified of a court order prohibiting interference with Meredith, blocked him on that same day—Sept. 25—from entering the state college board's office in Jackson to enroll.

2. Johnson, acting on Barnett's

In earlier federal court trials in Washington and New York, Hoffa was acquitted on conspiracy charges stemming from alleged attempts at bribery and wiretapping. He goes on trial Jan. 4 in Miami, Fla., on a mail fraud indictment.

In this case, the government charged Hoffa and Commercial Carriers, Inc.—CCI—of Detroit conspired to operate a profitable truck-leasing business for the labor leader's benefit. The prosecution said CCI's motive was to insure labor peace.

Although most of the alleged offenses occurred in Michigan, the government said it elected to try the case here because the truck-leasing firm was chartered in Nashville.

Stock in the trucking venture, named Test Fleet Corp., was listed in the maiden names of Mrs. Hoffa and the wife of another Teamsters official.

CCI was indicted along with Hoffa. The firm entered a plea of no contest and the judge reserved a ruling until completion of the Hoffa trial.

Today's Chuckle

The only way to save money nowadays is to have short arms and deep pockets.

Oil well began producing 400 barrels a day on the farm.

Four other producers followed. The first well, choked back to a 60-barrel-a-day production, was signed over to the hospital until Frankie's expenses were paid off.

It was at best a short-lived windfall for production has waned until one well has been capped and the other four are bringing in only $135 a month.

"They say that's not much," said Mrs. Vincent, "but you don't know how much that helps when you've got so many mouths to feed."

Mrs. Vincent explained, "If we didn't have hope there would be no reason for living."

During the Christmas season there will be prayers for Frankie's recovery, as there have been for his last four Christmases, for the family noted: "Frankie was always a happy boy but he loved Christmas more than any other time."

France Is Invited To Join Britain And U.S. In Sweeping New Western Nuclear Concept

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI) — President Kennedy and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan Friday announced a sweeping new concept of a Western nuclear deterrent and invited France to join them.

They barred the Skybolt controversy for good by disclosing the United States would make available the far superior Polaris missile for British submarines along with necessary equipment.

The Anglo-American leaders concluded their three-day conference by offering nuclear bombers and technical atomic weapons to the NATO command at once and agreeing to assign to the alliance later a Polaris strike force which will belong in part to Britain. The NATO command does not now have its own nuclear force.

French President Charles de Gaulle, who has been aloof to the idea of a NATO atomic command while seeking an independent French nuclear force, was invited to join the historic new approach to Western strategy on the same terms governing the Anglo-American relationship.

Both the United States and Britain informed France in advance of the results of the Kennedy-Macmillan talks but there was no immediate French reaction.

PALM BEACH

President Kennedy flew to Palm Beach Friday afternoon to spend the Christmas holidays. He was escorted to the airport by Bahama Governor Sir Robert Stapledon.

In return for the Polaris offer the British agreed to build up their conventional forces and help convince the reluctant members of the NATO alliance they must do the same if West Europe is to be safe from Soviet attack.

The Polaris missiles, upon which the British must place their own nuclear warheads, will be supplied at production cost. The same offer applies to France if De Gaulle decides to join the arrangement.

The President and Prime Minister said Polaris missiles supplied to Britain—along with British submarines which still must be built—will be "assigned as part of a NATO nuclear force and targeted in accordance with NATO plans."

Britain now has one nuclear submarine, the Dreadnought, which is undergoing acceptance trials for commissioning in spring. The nuclear submarine Valiant is under construction and a third nuclear submarine was ordered last week to supplement the 32 conventional submarines in commission.

COST STAGGERING

It was estimated the British nuclear submarine force would require at least 10 years to be fully operational. Its cost would be staggering and Macmillan still faced possible major political troubles at home over the increased taxes necessary.

Spokesmen for both Kennedy and Macmillan said Friday's agreement concluding the historic Nassau conference was designed to lead to the eventual creation of a truly multi-lateral Western nuclear force. It was described as a "landmark" recognizing the fact that Western defense and nuclear war could not be "divided."

GUBERNATORIAL DECISION

Passman Announcement Is Scheduled March 15th

Congressman Otto E. Passman will announce on March 15 whether or not he will run for governor. The Fifth District representative said this Friday in Monroe after returning from south Louisiana where he had been visiting his brother.

Passman said he is looking at the "financial condition of Louisiana" at the present time and is "weighing this matter" (his candidacy) against my worth in the Congress. . . . The question of Passman's candidacy came to light Friday when he was quoted in an Opelousas newspaper as saying he would run for governor next year.

Passman confirmed that he is considering the race but said he has not made up his mind.

Passman had been in Sulphur and Vinton.

Here is the congressman's statement: "Certainly I am considering the possibility of offering for the governorship of Louisiana. I would not, however, want to hold that high office just for the sake of

Federal Judge Denies Negro Clemson Entry

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge C. C. Wyche dismissed Friday the complaint of Harvey Gantt, 20, a Charleston Negro in his effort to gain admission to state-owned Clemson College.

In an order signed at Spartanburg, Judge Wyche said Gantt failed to prove at a hearing here three weeks ago that he was discriminated against because of his race.

The jurist said Gantt, who has been a student at Iowa State College at Ames, failed to comply with rules and regulations at Clemson when he made application to the school.

He said Gantt had not been denied admission on any ground and pointedly said, "He has not been denied admission to Clemson College because of his race."

In his order, Judge Wyche said the architectural student "has failed to prove any material allegations" by the "greater weight of the evidence."

Steel Dumping Complaint Filed

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — U.S. Steel Corp. announced Friday it has filed a complaint with the commissioner of customs in Washington charging that Japanese made standard steel pipe is being "dumped" in this country.

It was the second such action by U.S. Steel in two weeks. On Dec. 11 it charged that similar steel products manufactured in West Germany, Great Britain and Belgium-Luxembourg were being dumped.

Dumping is the practice of selling below what is considered a fair value price.

Henry J. Wallace, president of U.S. Steel's National Tube Division, said Friday's action was taken because dumping is "condemned by the general agreement on tariffs and trade (GATT)" of which Japan is a signatory. He said West Germany, Great Britain and Belgium-Luxembourg also are signatories to GATT.

City Employees Begin Holidays

Employees of the City of Monroe, with the exception of policemen and firemen, today begin a four-day holiday that will extend through Tuesday, Christmas Day. A meeting of the City Council, which normally would have been held Tuesday, has been re-scheduled for Thursday at 10 a.m. Policemen and firemen will be on duty throughout the holidays.

Negotiations Continue In N.Y. Strike

NEW YORK (UPI)—A federal mediator said Friday publishers and striking printers had begun to "talk in realistic terms" about a settlement as the New York newspaper strike entered its third week.

Although it was a hopeful sign, Stephen I. Schlossberg, special assistant to chief Federal Mediator William Simkin, refused to go as far as saying he was optimistic about an early settlement.

Schlossberg warned both sides Thursday that if they did not start making some progress toward getting the nine struck newspapers, with a daily circulation of 5.7 million, back on the streets by Friday the federal team would break off talks—at least until after the Christmas holidays.

Schlossberg met separately Friday with representatives of the Publishers Association of New York and of Local 6 of the International Typographical Union (ITU).

"They talked about some issues in realistic terms, but came to no agreement," Schlossberg said. "There hasn't been any economic movement, but this is a very important area. We remain hopeful. We consider it worth working at."

He cautioned, however, that the situation was still extremely serious. "I couldn't say I'm optimistic," he said.

Bertram A. Powers, president of the ITU local, said his negotiating committee stood ready to meet in joint session with publishers at any time, including Saturdays and Sundays.

There was no indication, however, that either side had budged from the economic positions they took when the strike began Dec. 8.

Printers are asking for a $38 package per week per man, a deal that the publishers say would cost an additional $40 million a year in labor costs if applied to all craft unions. The publishers, which have offered a $9.20 package, said the union demand threatens the survival of the papers.

Salvation Army Elects Officers

New officers have been elected to head the Salvation Army here during 1963.

John Rudisill was named chairman of the board, while other officers include Bert Hatten, first vice - chairman; Hugh Balfour, second vice - chairman; Fred Brownlee, treasurer; and Roy Brooks, secretary.

New officers will be installed at the Salvation Army's annual banquet early next year.

LONDON (AP)—Radio Moscow said Friday night Britain and the United States, as a result of the Bahamas parley between President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan, "are heating up the nuclear arms drive."

It also said the Polaris will fall as a heavy burden on the British taxpayer.

Window Service Back To Normal

Window service at the Monroe Post Office, along with the Ouachita and Louisville stations, will return to a normal schedule today, with windows opening at 8:30 a.m. and closing at 12 noon.

Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn said regular window service and mail delivery also will be provided Monday.

He added that the main office and both branch stations will be closed Tuesday, Christmas Day. However, gift parcels and special delivery letters and packages will be delivered that day. Collection service from outlying mail boxes will be on a holiday schedule, he added.

Hathorn also expressed special appreciation to the general public for cooperation with the "mail early for Christmas" campaign.

sustaining a writ of habeas corpus for Maynard C. Wheeler, president of Commercial Solvents Corp.

The writ supports the argument of Wheeler's attorney that he cannot properly be extradited to Texas.

The case arose from an indictment against Wheeler on Aug. 3, by a Potter County, Tex., grand jury for allegedly conspiring to fix prices of liquid fertilizer.

QUOTES OF JUDGE

Justice Fine's opinion said in part: "There is no claim that Wheeler was present within the state of Texas at the time of the commission of the alleged crimes. That is, therefore, not the usual situation where extradition is sought of a 'fugitive'."

"The code provisions dealing with extradition were revised in 1936 upon the recommendation of the Law Revision Commission on the model of the Uniform Criminal Extradition Act. The clause in section 834 was added as a 'careful safeguard against extradition procedure in this type of case.'"

"A similar bill passed by the Legislature in 1935 which did not contain this safeguard had been vetoed by the then governor, Herbert Lehmann because of the 'strong possibility of strong misuse and abuse.'"

"There are no allegations to show that the conspiracy was ever carried in Texas or that any acts were committed in pursuance thereof."

"There is no allegation that the corporation or anyone in its behalf did any acts in the State of Texas in pursuance of the alleged conspiracy."

Leftist Leads For President In Dominican

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI)—Juan Bosch of the left-center Dominican Revolutionary Party appeared headed for a smashing triumph Friday night in the presidential election.

With more than one-third of the votes tabulated, Bosch had 209,507 votes against 115,412 for Vialto A. Fiallo, candidate of the National Civic Union.

Bosch's apparently winning margin continued to mount hourly, according to the unofficial and incomplete returns. The national elections board estimated that some 900,000 voted.

Bosch still had not claimed victory nor had Fiallo conceded defeat. Civic Union spokesmen continued to hope that late returns from the interior would close the gap.

Bosch, described politically as a leftist moderate, appeared to be carrying his party ticket to victory in congressional and municipal elections.

Although ticket splitting was possible, most Dominican voters participating in their first free elections since 1928 apparently voted straight tickets.

Negroes Jailed For Contempt Freed On Bond

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Three Negro women jailed for court contempt when they refused to leave seats on the white side of a courtroom gained freedom Friday on bonds of $500 each.

The three — Pearl Lee George, Laura Lee Harris and Willie Harris — had served a 10-day jail term, and began serving an additional 30 days instead of paying $100 fines.

Final date of the jail terms was Jan. 8.

Attorneys gained freedom for them on bond after Justice Thomas C. Clark earlier this week ordered their release under bond, pending final court action in their cases.

The three were sent to jail by Dist. Judge Fred LeBlanc early this month during the district court trial of a Negro integration leader, the Rev. B. Elton Cox of High Point, N. C.

Cox, a Congress of Racial Equality field secretary, was convicted and jailed on charges of defamation of the district attorney and a state judge here.

REAL PEACE UNLIKELY

Uneasy Stalemate Hangs Over India

NEW DELHI, India, (AP) — A uneasy stalemate, neither war nor peace, hangs over the snowy Himalayas.

This hostile confrontation between India and Communist China, two months after the Chinese attacks began Oct. 20, could turn into more fighting by next spring. Or it could develop into a prolonged armed truce. Real peace looks unlikely.

It will be two or three months before the Indian army is able to return to the northeastern Himalayas behind withdrawing Chinese troops.

The army still is trying to recover from the beating it took when the Chinese drove it on to the plains of Assam a month ago. It is in no position to reoccupy territory that the Chinese are voluntarily relinquishing.

At the other end of the line, in Ladakh, the army is trying to build up through tenuous supply lines the strength to match the Chinese. The Communist forces are not withdrawing from the con-

India's stated position is that the Chinese must be driven from Indian soil. Whether this is militarily possible, especially in eastern Ladakh, is doubtful.

The Indian people have been shielded from facts about their army's defeat.

Businessman Is Injured In Crossett Wreck

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Earl Barker, co-owner of a chain of Piggy-Wiggly stores in Arkansas and Louisiana, was injured Thursday night when the auto he was driving collided with a parked truck.

Barker, of Crossett, was traveling toward town on State Route 133 (Bastrop - Crossett Road) when his auto rammed partially up the rear end of a loaded pulpwood truck, according to Arkansas state police.

Barker was hospitalized with broken ribs and facial lacerations at El Dorado.

State police said flares were out by the truck and the driver, Guy Manuell, who resides just over the Louisiana line, was signaling with a flashlight. State police said the truck was about three feet onto the road.

No charges had been filed in connection with the accident Friday. Scene of the wreck was about a mile out of town.

PASS CHRISTIAN, Miss. (AP)—A Greyhound bus and a tractor-trailer truck collided in foggy early morning darkness on U.S. 90 near here Friday injuring three persons.

State Patrolman George Saxon said the bus slammed into the rear of the truck when the truck pulled out of a gasoline station in front of the bus.

The bus driver, Willie Bedwell, 35, of Mobile, was hospitalized with a broken leg and cuts and bruises. He was reported in fair condition.

Mrs. Kate Gay, 68, of Blakeley, Ga., a passenger on the bus, suffered a fractured hand and leg, and head cuts. She was in fair condition.

Our Twin Presidents

Political cartoonists have begun showing two men sitting side by side at the president's desk in the white house when people come in for conferences with the chief executive. So far, they have shown President John Kennedy sitting on the right and his brother, Robert, attorney general of the United States, sitting on the left. How long it will be before Robert is moved over to the right and John is shifted to the left is problematic.

In part, Robert C. Allen and Paul Scott, two of Washington's leading political writers, had this to say:

"President Kennedy apparently has a powerful rival as the patronage boss of his administration. "His brother, Attorney General Robert Kennedy, seems to have the final say."

"At least that's the bewildering experience of New York State Chairman William McKeon. At an unannounced white house conference, the president personally assured him all federal patronage in the state would be channeled through him. But McKeon still has to collect on that promise."

"Bobby Kennedy appears to have a firm hold on the dispensing of those jobs, working through a personal representative, Paul Corbin, controversial special assistant to Democrat National Chairman John Bailey."

"Increasingly, party leaders consider Bobby the real power of the national committee, with Chairman Bailey largely a figurehead."

The astonishing thing about President Kennedy's unequivocal promise to McKeon that he could handle the New York patronage was the fact that the promise was nullified by a presidential underling before McKeon got out of the white house.

Kenneth O'Donnell, special assistant to the president, in charge of his calendar appointments, who must have been sitting in on the president's conference with McKeon, told McKeon, as he was about to leave the white house, that all patronage matters would have to be cleared with Robert Kennedy. McKeon flatly balked at this astonishing order — delivered within minutes after he had talked to the president — but it did him no good. He was told that all state patronage had to be cleared with the young attorney general.

That statement seemed to indicate that Robert Kennedy is in charge of patronage in all states and that what he says supersedes what President Kennedy says.

Oldsters Live Alone

More than one million persons in the United States who are 75 years old or older live alone and like it.

Figures on these oldsters are provided by the census bureau. The statement that they like living alone is proved by the fact that if they did not like it they would move in with someone else. Even if they don't have families they care to live with, every state now has plenty of homes for the aged in which living costs may be less than living alone and for those who are not able to pay their own way, the cost is borne by welfare departments.

Many may be inclined to say, "How sad," when told of these oldsters who live alone but they have another think coming.

We know some of these aged persons who are living alone and the ones we know are proud of it.

Half of the million, the census bureau said, own the homes in which they live alone. They have a sense of independence that is satisfying. This usually means they have stayed in the homes where memories fill every corner of the houses in which they reared families. For every man who is living by himself in his advanced years there are two women.

These elder citizens are used to the house and like to be able to move at their own pace. They are pleased to have maintained the

Not long after he took office, Robert Kennedy announced that he had requested his brother to give him supervisory powers over all members of the president's cabinet and therefore the final word on how every one of the departments of the executive branch of the government were to be run. To that, Robert seems to have added largely control over the judicial branch, inasmuch as there have been indications that the federal courts, including the United States supreme court, have followed his desires far more readily than they should. President Kennedy neither affirmed nor denied publicly that Robert would supervise all the departments but that policy seems to have been put into effect.

Not only has Robert Kennedy taken patronage out of the president's hands, taken over supervision of the various cabinet members' duties, taken more legal authority than the office of attorney general contemplates, interfered in state and private suits, and dictated to the state department but he seems to have assumed permanent occupancy of an equal chair at the president's official desk, at least figuratively.

It is well known that Robert Kennedy is shrewder, more cunning and tricky, less scrupulous than his brother, the president.

If this country were a monarchy and President Kennedy were a king, many would believe that Robert was conspiring for the throne. Since nothing of that kind exists, Robert probably will be satisfied to hold the ruling hand and to let John Kennedy hold the title of president until he has served a second term. Then Robert will expect to come into his own and to hold both the title and the power.

No president has ever allowed an assistant to assume so much power as President Kennedy has allowed his brother, Robert, to take over. Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower made similar mistakes during his presidency, however, when he allowed Sherman Adams, presidential assistant, and Eisenhower's brother, Milton, to tell him how to run things. When Adams was forced to resign as a result of the vicuna coat incident, President Eisenhower used his own judgment to a greater extent and did better.

It is to be hoped that President Kennedy will continue to occupy one of the two chairs at the president's desk and won't let Robert push him out entirely.

health and the means to keep their homes. Some have returned to the old home after experiments in living with a child or in a home for the aged.

As long as they have a choice and really prefer to decline other living arrangements, we must admire the self-sufficiency of these independent persons. They live alone and like it.

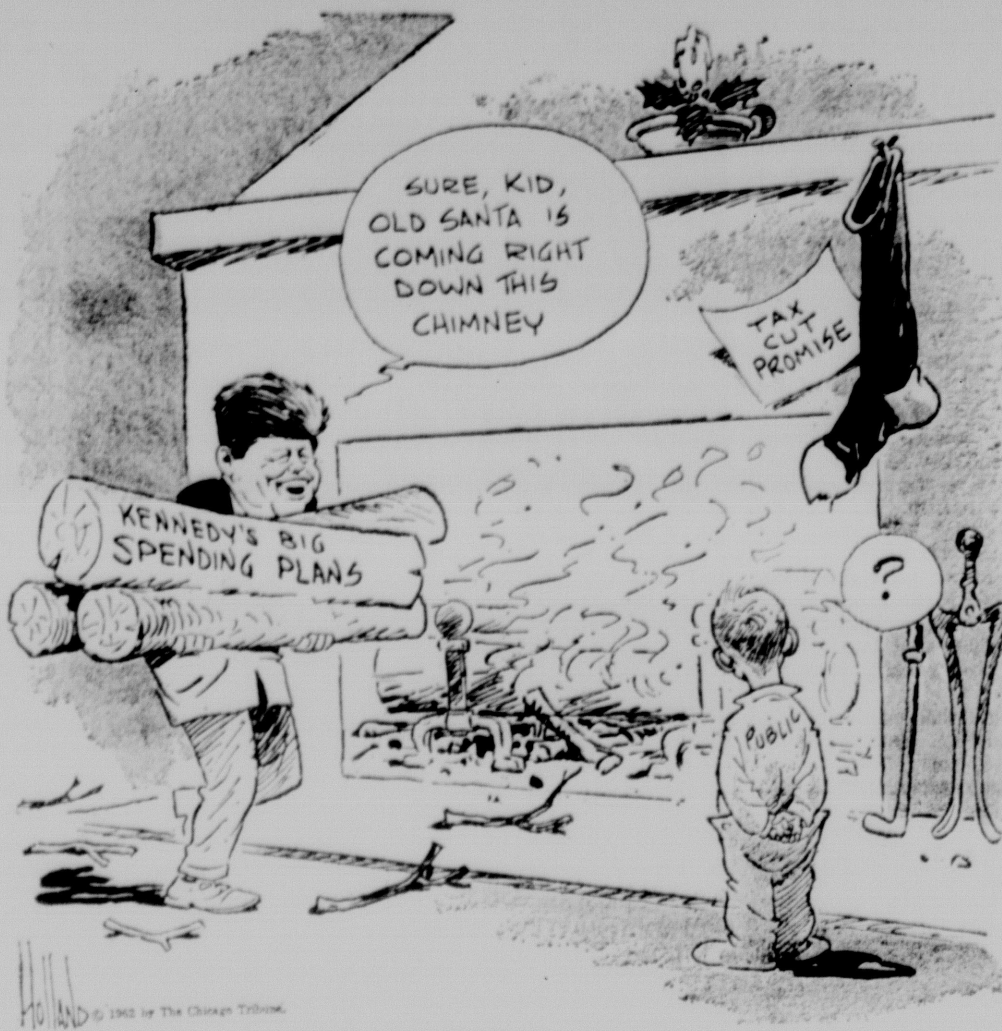

Christmas observance was declining when Charles Dickens wrote his "Christmas Carol." The heartwarming story helped revive the Christmas spirit and Dickens is often called the father of modern Christmas.

Portugal Asks Huge Rent

Wants $80 Million Annually For U.S. Air And Naval Bases In Azores; Formerly No Charge Made

Portugal wants $80 million a year in rent for the U. S. air and naval bases in the Azores. They have been rent-free since World War II.

The demanded $80 million is approximately what Portugal is spending to maintain some 45,000 troops, about half of its army, in Angola, its revolt-torn African colony.

That's the bad news Secretary Rusk gave the President after conferring with Portuguese Foreign Minister Alberto Nogueira during the NATO conference in Paris.

The Portuguese diplomat made no bones as to the reason for this extraordinary rental demand. He said bluntly Portugal is irate at U.S. refusal of support against India's armed seizure of Goa, and bitter attacks in the United Nations on alleged brutalities in Angola; and his country urgently needs funds to preserve its rule of Angola.

Nogueira was particularly critical of the U. S. for not inducing the Congo government to close camps in which he charged Angola guerrillas are being trained. Much was made by Nogueira of Portugal's long alliance with the U. S. He stressed that his country had strongly supported the Allies in World War II, but had been rebuffed when it needed help in Goa and Angola.

Portugal is still vigorously pro-Western. But henceforth, Nogueira declared, its dealings with the U. S. are on a strict business basis.

As a starter, Portugal wants $80 million rent for the crucial Azores bases.

Built in World War II, the air base on Terceira Island, where bombers of the Strategic Air Command refuel, and the naval base on Santa Maria Island, cost around $100 million. Under the terms of a 1957 lease, the bases must be evacuated next June unless a new agreement is reached.

At a press conference early this year, President Kennedy frankly conceded that these bases are "very important to us and to NATO," and expressed the hope Portugal "will continue to permit us to use these bases, upon which 75 to 80 per cent of our military air traffic to Europe depends." Senator Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., and Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., both Reserve officers, after talking with Foreign Minister Nogueira, wrote the President urging "greater understanding" of Portugal's complex problems in Angola. They advised that the U. S. should support Portugal instead of opposing it.

HOUSE HUNTING — Russia is looking for a larger and more secluded embassy in Washington.

The present embassy, on 16th Street, three blocks from the White House, has been occupied since diplomatic relations were established with the Soviet by President Roosevelt in the mid '30s. Originally, the embassy was the Pullman mansion the scene of elaborate parties prior to World War I.

Ambassador Dobrynin has told Capital realtors his government wants to sell the 16th Street embassy and move to a larger and more secluded establishment.

As an example of what Dobrynin is interested in, he cited Tregaron, the handsome 20-acre estate of the late Joseph Davies, Ambassador to Moscow during the New Deal and author of the best-selling "Mission to Moscow." In addition to the big manor house, there are other buildings on the estate, which is not far from the towering Washington (Episcopal) Cathedral where Woodrow Wilson is buried.

Particularly appealing to Dobrynin are the many trees on the estate, which is surrounded by a high iron fence.

Also greatly interested in Tregaron is the new Communications Satellite Corporation, which Congress voted last session. The incorporators of this billion dollar concern, who have yet to be confirmed by the Senate, have put out feelers on the purchase of Tregaron. But it would have to be rezoned to permit its use for business purposes.

According to what Dobrynin is telling the realtors, his government is prepared to spend $1 million for the desired new embassy.

UPHILL FIGHT — General Alfred Gruenther, head of the American Red Cross and one-time NATO commander, is hoping to spend Christmas at home after a long illness at the Army's Walter Reed Hospital. He was taken there in September with pneumonia. Blood clots developed in his right lung, and emergency surgery had to be resorted to. Gruenther's recovery has been slow, but his condition is improved. Justice Department officials are carefully reading "The Corrupt Judge," by one-time Assistant Attorney General Joseph Borkin, for clues to possible action against several jurists. Borkin was a noted anti-trust crusader, and is still a militant fighter against boodling in high places.

Secretary Rusk and other State Department officials can now keep fit and trim like other New Frontiersmen — if they can find the time between crises. A 20-by-25-foot gymnasium has been installed in the vast $60 million State Department building, with rowing machines, stationary bicycles and other devices. The gym cost $5,000, and was made by converting two private dining rooms on the top floor. Admittance is limited to a score of high rankers. Senator Clair Engle, D-Calif., is vigorously pressuring the administration to support the development of a supersonic airliner. In a letter to Federal Aviation Administrator Najeeb Halaby, Engle warned that unless prompt steps are taken to produce such a plane, the U. S. will lose out to the British and French. Declared Engle, "If the British-French partnership succeeds in capturing the world market for supersonic transports, the United States will be forced to relinquish leadership of world civil transport."

Moss Is Helpful

Forces Defense Secretary McNamara To Change Bad Stand

Democratic Representative John E. Moss is hardly what I would call a buddy. I have expressed pretty strong disagreement with him on a number of questions — and he has never been shy about replying.

But when the 88th Congress meets in January, I intend to tell him that, for what it is worth, he has earned my humble "well done." Mr. Moss has succeeded where others failed in forcing Defense Secretary Robert McNamara to retreat from an untenable and damaging position.

It will be recalled that Republican Representative Earl Wilson mounted a campaign to expose improper procurement practices at the Pentagon which were costing the taxpayer an estimated $12 billion a year. Contracts which should have been open to competitive bidding were being negotiated on a "sole source" basis at many times what they should have cost. As a result of Mr. Wilson's disclosures, a House committee investigated, issuing a scathing report condemning the practice.

Secretary McNamara's reaction to Mr. Wilson, to the investigation, and to reports by myself and a handful of other correspondents, was to cut off the flow of information on which documented disclosures had been made. This was censorship, pure and simple, for there was nothing classified about the material. In fact, it had been supplied as a matter of course not only to Representative Wilson and others in Congress but to trade papers and defense contractors.

As chairman of the House Freedom of Information subcommittee, Mr. Moss might have looked the other way so as not to embarrass his fellow Democrat. But for three months, his subcommittee kept up a running fire directed at Mr. McNamara and his deputy on procurement, Assistant Secretary Thomas D. Morris. The Defense Secretary stubbornly stood by his censorship directive, hoping that Mr. Moss and the subcommittee would eventually go away.

At this point, Mr. Moss threatened that he would hold open hearings unless procurement information were made available to Representative Wilson. It was pointed out forcefully to Mr. Mc-Namara that such hearings would not only make him look "silly" but might damage his effectiveness within the Administration. There could be no plausible explanation for cutting off a Congressional critic from facts available to others.

Secretary McNamara, already beset by rising criticism of his efforts to stop the flow of all unofficial information from the Pentagon, capitulated. Still ringing in his ears was the outcry of the American Society of Newspaper Editors for the statement of his Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs condoning and advocating a policy of "managed news." Even the pious excuse that "national security" was involved failed to silence the press. In the Wilson case, the prime motivation had been to cover up actions that no one would accept as proper.

For Mr. McNamara's capitulation, credit should go to Representative Moss. From now on, Representative Wilson will be able to scrutinize Pentagon procurement. His past year's activity, hampered though it was, saved an estimated $1 billion — according to reputable trade papers of the electronics industry. How much Mr. Wilson will be able to save next year is anybody's guess.

The chances are that it will not be too much. For the Pentagon knows that he is watching (and that those in the press who reported his findings will still be looking over his shoulder). Under these circumstances, there will be a healthy tendency to forego the "sole source" contract and to allow the competitive process to bring procurement costs and profits down to a reasonable level. This is what Mr. Wilson wanted from the start.

The immediate beneficiary will be the taxpayer. But in the long run, so too will be Mr. Moss's party. Secretary McNamara is not accustomed to the ways of public life. Like many trust into high office, he becomes impatient at the restraints imposed by his job. And he forgets that his board of directors is the Congress. The quicker he learns this, the greater will be his contribution to the government. Mr. Moss has been one of the first to add to that education.

Sharp Drop In Use Of First-Class Tickets Signals Change

If you're among the skyrocketing number of air travelers who a few years back went first class but who now almost automatically buy coach tickets, you are contributing to one of the top problems of the airlines today: the rapid decline in first class passenger traffic.

The slump started with the introduction of coach service 14 years ago. It has been accelerated by the jets, which have slashed the duration of trips and coach "discomforts." As "Aviation Week and Space Technology" recently pointed out, the difference between a first class and economy ticket for a New York-London round trip is $414 and, "What can an airline offer the transatlantic traveler in two 6-7 hour flights that is worth $414?"

There is no question but that those who take frequent business trips have been relentlessly switching from first class to coach and economy class. There is no question but that there has been an ever-increasing crowding in coach facilities while the most expensive sections are half empty or worse.

To counter this trend, William A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, is now pushing a plan that would eliminate all first class and coach fares and substitute a new, all one-class service, somewhat improved over today's coaches. Here, from Patterson, is an explanation of his plan and its meaning to you.

Porter: How would an air traveler benefit from your proposed one-class air service?

Patterson: When we first ordered jets, we expected that the 105 seats would be divided 40 per cent first class, 60 per cent coach. Instead, our jets run about 30 per cent coach, 20 per cent first class. We are crowding 120 or more passengers into double rows of three seats in the coach section, separated by a narrow aisle.

In the very near future, we will file application with the Civil Aeronautics Board to try out single fares on one of our routes (probably Chicago-San Francisco or Los Angeles) at substantially less than first class prices and only slightly higher than present coach fares. This plan would go into effect in early spring.

In the new planes we will be getting in late 1963 the seating will be arranged for one-class service, two seats on one side and three on the other side of a much wider aisle.

Seats will be larger than the present coach seats, although not as roomy as those currently in first class. This will vastly improve passenger comfort and safety. Those accustomed to a good dinner and other amenities of first class travel will lack nothing. You've always been able to get better dinners at a fine restaurant than on airplanes.

Porter: What would be the industry-wide implications of returning to an all one-class fare system?

Patterson: In United's case, this would reduce our annual operating expense by $4.7 million. We would save about $3.3 million a year on food costs and beverages alone. Other airlines would be able to save on a similar scale.

Porter: What is basically wrong with the present system?

Patterson: Simply that trying to build air traffic by all manner of pricing gimmicks hasn't worked. Our experience shows that a 50 per cent reduction in fares will increase traffic volume by only 3 per cent. We'd have to increase our volume by 20 per cent or more to offset a 25 per cent reduction in some coach fares. Just to keep up with the fishing expeditions of others, United now offers more than 20 types of fares, and we're just one airline.

It's time for the airlines to stop befuddling the public with multifares and multi-classes of service.

Porter: So you think two-class airline service is doomed?

Patterson: Coach service was originally introduced to develop a new market. But, especially since the jets came in, all that has happened has been a diversion from first class — a diversion which has been extremely costly to airlines everywhere. After many years of experimenting with disappointing remedies suggested by the transportation economists, I think the airline industry ought to take another look at its concept of two-class service.

Jail Terms, Big Fines Possible In Court Action

A recent Look magazine article on the Meredith case, which the Justice Department described as accurate, said that Barnett was secretly dealing with Atty. Gen. Kennedy, for four days prior to the riot, on how Meredith could be admitted while Barnett preserved a show of defiance.

Justice officials declined comment on whether these purported telephone calls might be part of the case against Barnett.

3. Barnett and Johnson failed to maintain order on the campus and directed law enforcement officers to block Meredith on Sept. 27 when Meredith, en route to the campus in a motor convoy, turned back because of a large force of Mississippians waiting on the campus.

4. Barnett "willfully failed to exercise his responsibility, authority and influence as governor to maintain law and order upon the campus" on Sept. 30, the night of the riot.

The Justice Department asked the court to set a date for a hearing.

The New Orleans appeals court already has held Barnett and Johnson in civil contempt for ignoring orders and interfering with Meredith's enrollment.

It set penalties of $10,000-a-day fines and jail for Barnett and $5,000-a-day fines for Johnson until they purged themselves. But it hasn't imposed the penalties yet, and hasn't ruled whether—or when—they purged themselves.

With the final disposition of the civil contempt cases still hanging, the court directed the Justice Department last month to institute criminal contempt proceedings—an order that led to Friday's action.

A major difference between civil and criminal contempt is this: While civil contempt is aimed at forcing compliance with a court order and offers the defendant a chance to purge himself and perhaps escape any penalty, criminal contempt involves punishment for an act already done with no chance of gaining forgiveness through future action.

Justice Department officials in Washington declined to give any details on the evidence they plan to present against Barnett. The department's Civil Rights Division has been preparing the case since

Open House

Favorite place in the parish courthouse Friday was the clerk of court's office, and for good reason — the office's annual Christmas party and open house. It was an all-day party, with plenty of sandwiches, cake and goodies still left when the office closed at 5 p.m. And there was a steady stream of visitors throughout the day.

Office Closed

The Boy Scout office on Sixth Street closed at 5 p.m. Friday for a long holiday for Christmas. Offices will not be open until Thursday morning.

Meanwhile, all is in readiness, we hear, for the Christmas party tonight at the home of Scout Executive Jack Pankey. Sure to come are Mrs. Eloise Wade, Mary Ann Duke, Pam Lee and Larry Wade, all employees in the office, and central District Executive Jase Johnson.

Wonder who'll be Santa Claus.

RUDOLPH'S SHINY red nose and the lights in the Christmas tree he's pulling are powered by that festive atomic generator in the sleigh seat. After the holidays, the 60-watt generator will be used to power an unmanned floating weather station in the Gulf of Mexico for the U.S. Navy. The Atomic Energy Commission granted the Martin Co.'s Nuclear Division the builder of the generator, special permission to pep up the reindeer with a bit of nuclear energy. Mrs. Laura Loux, Baltimore, seems a little apprehensive about the radiation potential of Rudolph and party. (AP Wirephoto)

Founder Of Ad Agency, Wife Killed In Crash

OLD WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Harrison McCann, 82, a founder and honorary chairman of McCann-Erickson, New York advertising agency, and his wife were killed Friday in an automobile accident.

Police said McCann was driving eastbound on the Long Island Expressway with his wife, Dorothy, and that the automobile struck a stone abutment at an overpass.

Both were pronounced dead at the scene. The bodies were taken to Meadowbrook Hospital.

Police said McCann may have suffered a heart attack, but that this could not be determined definitely pending an autopsy.

McCann, despite his years, continued active and had visited the McCann-Erickson offices at 435 Lexington Avenue in New York on Thursday.

The McCanns lived on North Road in Greenport, Long Island. The couple also had a home at 43 Sutton Place South in New York City.

Police said they apparently were driving from their New York City residence to their Greenport home.

Negro Teacher Ruling Appealed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Justice Department formally appealed Friday a federal judge's refusal to order reinstatement of a Negro teacher whom it claimed was fired for voter activity.

U. S. Dist. Judge Harold Cox, on Aug. 30, refused to order the Greene County, Miss., School Board to re-hire Ernestine Denham Talbert.

The federal government contended that the board refused to re-hire Ernestine Talbert because she had testified that she had been rejected as a voter in neighboring Treene County, where she lived.

THIS WAS THE CIVIL WAR

BY MERTON T. AKERS

The Radical Senate Republicans made a bid at mid-December 1862 to take over conduct of the Union side of the Civil War and ran head on into A. Lincoln, politician and master manipulator of men.

On Dec. 16, three days after the disastrous battle of Fredericksburg, the Radicals made their move. Their target was Secretary of State William H. Seward, diplomat and master manipulator of men. Seward acted immediately. They may do as they please about me, but they shall not put state — not Lincoln — was running the administration — and furthermore running it against Radical Republican principles.

Late on that Tuesday afternoon of Dec. 16 the 32 Republican Senators met in secret caucus at the Capitol. First they proposed to offer a resolution in the Senate expressing "a want of confidence" in Seward, meaning that they wanted him fired.

Several conservative senators objected to so dramatic a resolution and the meeting soon turned into an indignation session during which all the old and new charges against Seward were given another airing.

Seward was against the war, the arguments ran, wanted a peace without victory, cared nothing about freeing the slaves and would welcome the seceding states back into the Union without punishment. Some of the diplomatic correspondence seemed to bear out the charges.

Sen. William Pitt Fessenden of Maine said he had been told "that there was a backstairs influence which often controlled the apparent conclusions of the cabinet itself." The "backstairs influence," of course, was Seward. The cabinet member who had informed Fessenden and the others was Secretary of Treasury Salmon P. Chase. Every man at the caucus knew Chase was the tale-bearer. Chase was a dedicated anti-slavery man and also had his eye on the presidency.

The senators slept over the problem and the next day adopted a resolution reading: "Resolved, that in the judgment of the Republican members of the Senate, the public confidence in the present administration of the Executive branch of the Government is hereby withdrawn."

tion would be increased by a change in and partial reconstruction of the cabinet.

They decided to present it to Lincoln rather than to the full Senate. Before the final vote was taken, Sen. Preston King of New York, a close friend of Seward, left the caucus and hastened downtown to see the secretary of state.

The former governor of New York was sitting before a wood fire smoking an after-dinner cigar when King arrived. The senator quickly told him what the caucus had done.

Voice Of Broadway

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Harold Rome's production of "Pins and Needles," the musical of the depression era, has been revived in Philadelphia and is doing so well it may come to New York. It's amazing the number of people who have fallen for Kim Novak's publicity stunt with that French designer. True, he did go to Hollywood to have his picture taken with her, but he got a lot of mileage out of the trip because of the "romance" rumors. After all, he's just an obscure couturier, and she's Kim Novak, and if she chooses to help his career by "dating" him, that's her good deed for the year.

(Oh, yes; his name is Luis Fer-raud.) Heavyweight champion Sonny Liston presented Sammy Davis Jr.'s adopted baby with a $5,000 U. S. Savings Bond — very nice of the Kiddie Who Has Everything. The picture that was scheduled to co-star Melina Mercouri and Danny Kaye has been called off. No word as to why.

It was supposed to go before the cameras in Greece next month. Abby Dalton, the pretty girl who plays Joey Bishop's wife on television, is expecting a baby in late May — and while her real life husband awaits the happy event, Joey's video scripts are being rewritten to include the impending Little Stranger as part of his fictional life. . . . Robert Goulet, no longer an exclusive item in Carol Lawrence's date book, has been charming Jill St. John, which may be a very good reason for her decision to leave California and make New York her permanent residence.

Lionel Hampton's swinging new band at the Metropole features solos by a young trumpeter, new to the local jazz scene, who certainly doesn't have to toot for a living. His name is Bud Brisbois and his dad owns one of the nation's biggest frozen meat firms. . . . A nine-year-old actress named Leslie Hunter is the favorite to land the important moppet role in the forthcoming musical adaptation of "Miracle On 34th Street" which will be titled "Here's Love" when it arrives on Broadway next year. Leslie won respectful notices from the drama critics when she appeared on the stage with Henry Fonda and Olivia de Havilland in "Gift of Time" and she's been busy since then in TV dramas. (Can you recall who played the little girl in the screen version of "Miracle." It was Natalie Wood, now quite a grown up young lady who has been married and divorced and is now dating Warren Beatty.)

Two of New York's independent radio stations have prohibited the playing of Roulette's new "At Home With That Other Family" album — which pokes fun at Nikita and his relatives — on any of their deejay programs. They consider it "too touchy for airtime."

The circus at the Coliseum, which is quite marvelous, and a wonderful treat to have in New York during the Christmas season, hasn't been doing well at all except over week ends — probably because of the newspaper strike. Many people who ordinarily would take the children to see it — or let the children take proposed that the cabinet meet with him and the committee that night.

The venerable White House witnessed that night from 7:30 until after midnight the master politician at work.

The committee of senators and the cabinet assembled in the same anteroom but the senators went in to see the President first. He asked their permission to bring in the cabinet.

To the combined group Lincoln first read the committee resolution, outlined the previous conference and then began defending his methods of dealing with the cabinet. He especially defended Seward. Most important questions were discussed in cabinet meetings, Lincoln said, but in emergencies he acted without cabinet sanction. But to the decision, once made, the cabinet acquiesced.

With that he turned to the cabinet members and asked: "Did they not?"

All eyes turned to Chase. Everyone in the room knew the charges against Seward originated with Chase. Angriest of the secretaries of treasury said he had not come to the meeting to "be arraigned."

Both Welles and Fessenden recorded Chase's answer. In general their accounts agree that Chase said important questions had been considered by the cabinet, but not thoroughly enough and, once a policy had been laid down, acquiescence had been the rule.

The meeting broke up on that note with the Radicals angry at Chase for not standing up for his previous statements to the senators against Seward.

Early the next morning Welles, after a sleepless night, saw the President and urged him to stand fast against accepting Seward's resignation. Lincoln agreed and said if he surrendered now the government might cave in. He told Welles to see Seward and repeat the words to him.

Welles did and returned to the White House. There he found Chase and Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton with Lincoln.

"Have you seen the man?" Lincoln asked Welles.

"I have and he assents to our views," Welles replied. Lincoln turned to Chase and said he had asked him to the White House because he was deeply troubled.

Chase replied that he was troubled, too, and that he had prepared his resignation.

"Where is it?" Lincoln demanded quickly.

As Chase took the paper from his pocket, Lincoln said "Let me have it," and reached for it. He opened the letter, read it and said:

"This cuts the Gordian knot. I see my way clear."

Lincoln dismissed all three with "the trouble is ended."

Now if Seward went, so would Chase.

Lincoln summed up his victory with a frontier phrase:

"Now I can ride. I have got a pumpkin in each end of my bag."

Lincoln wrote on Dec. 22 to both the secretaries that the country needed their services and that he refused to accept their resignations.

The victory of Fort Moultrie, one of the Charleston harbor defenses, over a British fleet in an all-day battle early in the Revolution is commemorated in the state seal of South Carolina which bears palmetto trees and under them shattered oak timbers symbolizing the broken British ships.

A popular comedian is about to quit his "second banana" role on a leading TV show. He's unhappy about something. . . . The credit rating of a brilliantly talented actor is dropping lower and lower in the bars he frequents. Our Hero is getting to the point that when he drinks — which is quite often — he forgets how many he's had and refuses to pay the tab. . . . Many members of the Fourth Estate, suffering because of the newspaper strike, are toiling at any kind of work they can get to support their families. Some are working as toy demonstrators in the big downtown department stores.

Doris Day's father, William Kappell, has dropped his divorce action against his most recent wife, Lavenia, and they're trying for a reconciliation in their home town, Cincinnati. Meanwhile, Doris herself is Topic A in Hollywood; she has two interesting and attractive fellows at her beck and call, but one of them is just "the beard" — meaning he creates the confusion while the other fellow is the one she really cares for. And Doris behaves as though nothing was happening at all; she just eats cookies and chews bubble gum and rises above everything.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

RIB SYNDROME

Pain originating in the chest wall usually is aggravated by breathing, coughing, or movements such as reaching or stretching. This soreness may develop as a result of strain of a muscle or ligament due to unaccustomed exercise or a severe coughing spell.

Now and then a muscle between two ribs goes into a violent cramp, similar to that of a night cramp in the leg muscles. The fibers relax within a minute but pain is severe while it lasts. Chest pain also stems from arthritis of the back; and a broken rib generally produces localized tenderness which is worsened by twisting or turning.

Emotional disorders must be included in the list of chest wall pain. The victim experiences a sense of tightness or aching or he may get a sharp pain. The condition often is associated with fatigue or an emotional strain, and in all probability stems from an unconscious, prolonged muscle tension. Distress often mimics heart pain or the discomfort may extend upward from a disorder in the upper abdomen.

"Rib syndrome" is the term proposed by Dr. Maurice S. Rawlings to describe pain originating in the cartilaginous tissue of the chest wall. Cartilage connects the ribs with the breastbone. It is softer and more flexible than bone and is easily injured by heavy work, sudden movements, cough, or respiratory strain.

Soreness is located over the strained area and is increased by deep breathing, stretching, reaching, or other movements. Turning over in bed may lead to pain that awakens the individual. Healing occurs eventually but takes time because the chest and the injured part move with every breath. In addition, cartilage has a poor blood supply.

Aspirin and heat are helpful in most chest wall injuries. A self-adhering, strapless, elastic rib halter or belt tends to minimize movements of the chest and promote healing. A wide, light brassiere is helpful when trauma occurs at the level of the breast.

OLIVE OIL

M. F. writes: I use lots of olive oil in cooking and salads. Does this encourage hardening of the arteries?

REPLY

No. Olive oil is not as effective as safflower, corn, or soybean oil in lowering the blood cholesterol which I assume you are confusing with hardening of the arteries.

your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the num-than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one

YOUR PROBLEMS

By Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 17-year-old son, who will be 17 in March, is daughter will be 17 in March.

Everyone comments on how attractive she is yet she has never been asked for a date.

Penny has always been fairly well-behaved and has never given us any trouble — until now. She has taken an unusual interest in a 14-year-old boy who lives down the street. He comes from a good family, is intelligent, and nice looking, but much too young for Penny. His parents are friends of ours and they don't like it any more than we do.

The two of them usually giggle and whisper like 9-year-olds but at times they make cow-eyes at each other and moon around like lovers. Frankly, we can't figure it.

I tried to shame Penny into dropping the boy, but she became furious. Now she lies about where she has been after school, and sometimes she sneaks out the back door to meet him after she says she is going to bed.

What advice can you give us? — CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Ridicule
and preaching will do no good.
It will only force her to be more devious and defiant. Say nothing about the boy for now. Accept the situation as you would if he were three years older.

If Penny hasn't lost interest in helping you with your problems, this boy by the time she has reached her 17th birthday, see a counselor who deals with problem-self-addressed envelope.

BIG DEFICIT FORECAST

New JFK Budget To Top Records

WASHINGTON (AP)—At around $12 billion if Congress takes around $99 billion, President Kennedy's next budget is expected to top all records for federal spending, in war or peacetime. Though the Pentagon's share is billion marked up by the Dwight D. Eisenhower administration in until the Skybolt controversy ends fiscal 1959, Kennedy, it is real-military outlays exceeding $50 billion, would like to leave that billion apparently will eat up more red-ink record in Republican than half the fiscal 1964 budget, hands, informed officials said.

A fourth consecutive year of red-ink spending is foreseen. Some experts guess the deficit at above $6 billion, compared with this year's $7.8 billion.

Officials point out that:

First, it assumes continued, sluggish business gains, producing between $93 and $94 billion of revenues. A recession would widen the fiscal gap; a spurt in business activity would narrow it.

Second, the forecast does not allow for the 1963 tax cut which budgeted for this government year. Kennedy plans to ask of Congress. Some officials foresee a deficit of early and favorable action. They put the limit at that point because it comes just short of the record peacetime deficit of $12.4 billion marked up by the Dwight D. Eisenhower administration in until the Skybolt controversy ends fiscal 1959, Kennedy, it is real-military outlays exceeding $50 billion, would like to leave that billion apparently will eat up more red-ink record in Republican than half the fiscal 1964 budget, hands, informed officials said.

A multibillion-dollar tax cut could easily send the deficit above the Eisenhower peak, but the administration's reported plan to take it in two annual bites would stretch out the revenue loss.

It also would stimulate economic growth sufficiently, administration sources predict, to generate budget surpluses in subsequent years.

The $99-billion spending estimate for fiscal 1964 represents an increase of more than $5 billion from the $93.7 billion of spending low for the 1963 tax cut which budgeted for this government year. Kennedy plans to ask of Congress. Some officials foresee a deficit of

It would surpass the peak spending year of World War II—1945—when outlays totaled $98.4 billion.

Defense, space and interest charges on the rising federal debt will account for the whole increase from this year, Kennedy told the New York Economic Club last week.

Some domestic programs will cost more, but those increases will be offset by cutbacks in the postal deficit, surplus grain storage costs, and other savings. And the White House has issued hold-the-line orders to all departments and agencies. Political considerations figure in the hold-down orders, too, some informants said.

If spending should reach the fat round total of $109 billion, it is reasoned, there would be an intensified assault by Republicans on Democratic spending policies. Nothing can be done to hold the government's interest payments, however, and very little can be done about military and space spending because most of the increases are built into the budget by earlier congressional action.

Part of the economy drive was the decision to kill off the $2.5-billion Skybolt missile program. Nevertheless, Pentagon spending is expected to rise by roughly $2 billion to a total of more than $50 billion.

Savings on the air-to-ground Skybolt missile may be offset in

DURING PAST YEAR

Consumer Prices Show Slight Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Consumer prices held steady in November with three dependents rose about 50 cents during the month to $66.19. With average prices unchanged, factory workers realized a 1 per cent increase in the buying power of their wages.

The Labor Department reported Friday that higher prices for new automobiles and some services were offset by cost declines for food and clothing during November. Thus the department's index of key consumer items remained at 106 per cent of the 1957-59 average.

This means that living costs had risen 1.4 per cent between January and November, 1962—and Ewan Clague, commissioner of labor statistics, said he looked for little or no change when the report on December prices is issued next month.

The report on November showed that the average weekly take-home pay for a factory worker with three dependents rose about 50 cents during the month to $66.19. With average prices unchanged, factory workers realized a 1 per cent increase in the buying power of their wages.

As a result of previous increases in the price index, about 75,000 aerospace employees will receive a one cent an hour wage increase. About 80,000 meat packing workers will receive an additional two cents and 25,000 cartage workers in Chicago will get an extra four cents. Wage contracts covering these employees are tied to the index.

During the past four years, according to Clague, living costs have risen 5.2 per cent, or at an average rate of about one-tenth of one per cent a month. He attributed the monthly "creep" to a continued rise in the cost of services, which climb slowly and sell that the average weekly take-home

Keep Your Yule Posies From Wilting

Keep the holiday cut flowers fresh by heeding these tips.

—Place stems in deep warm water. Pour warm water into the container in which they will be arranged. Cut stem ends diagonally with a sharp knife. Remove all foliage below the water level. Add a commercial flower preservative to the water.

—Poinsettias and euphorbias have a milky substance or juice which should be sealed into the stem by quickly dipping stem ends one to two inches into boiling water.

—When stem ends get soft or decayed, recut the stems to remove that portion. When flowers wilt, recut stems and place in warm water.

TENDERIZER

Brush a roast or other meat that seems tough with 1 tablespoon vinegar, then cook as usual. The vinegar helps make meat tender and the vinegar will be tasteless.

CLEAN OVEN

A sudsy cloth will remove the discoloration that collects around the oven door of a kitchen range. To prevent "crazing" the enamel, wait until the surface has cooled.

Festive Open House Honors HDC Members

Ouachita Parish Home Demonstration Club members were tallied bows hung below the mantel of Mrs. Audrey Dawson at the gala open house in her home, 1301 Park Avenue, Thursday, December 13. Guests were invited Van Odum, Mrs. R. L. Kiper, to call between the hours of 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. to Jane Hodgkins, Mrs. Ada Hanchey, Mrs. Bertha Bryson, and Mrs. John Lewis assisted in the serving.

The Dawson home was lavishly decorated for the occasion. In the dining room a color scheme of pink and gold was carried out in the table appointments. The table was covered with a pink nylon net cloth appliqued with tiny reindeer and sleigh of pink felt trimmed in gold sequins. A Christmas tree fashioned from pink satin leaves edged with gold glitter fastened in a round frame of five slender pink tapers centered the table.

The serving table in the den held an arrangement of silver poinsettias surrounded by pink tapers. Attached to each candle were miniature china angels. A tall silver Christmas tree decorated with pink birds and pink Christmas tree balls completed the room appointments.

The center of interest in the living room was the mantle which was centered with a tall pink candle nestled in pink angel hair. Twin wreaths of pinky nylon net

HINTS FROM Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is the latest on how to keep corduroy soft and velvety as when new.

1. Turn the garment inside out before washing. This will keep the lint from other clothes from adhering to the pile.

2. Use any mild soap and warm water. Squeeze suds through the fabric and rinse by pressing water out gently. Never twist or use a wringer on corduroy because this will set deep creases into the corduroy pile which you want to avoid.

3. If using a washing machine, set it at medium heat for water.

4. Use fabric softener in final rinse to restore velvety finish.

5. Hang up and allow to drip dry. If you use a dryer use it medium heat and tumble until nearly dry. Take out, shake off last drops, and allow to drip dry.

6. Children's clothes done in this way often do not even require pressing.

7. For finest finish, press corduroy on the wrong side over a terry cloth towel. Use a steam iron and it will give a truly finished appearance.

EXPLOSION AT EXHIBIT

SAIGON (UPI)—A South Vietnamese newspaper reported Friday that an explosion occurred at a North Vietnamese military exhibit in Hanoi last Wednesday shortly before the arrival of Soviet General P. I. Batov is leading a Soviet military delegation on a visit to Viet Nam.

BUNDLE GIFTS THE NEAT WAY

Neatness counts when wrapping Yule gifts.

Cut paper the right size, allowing enough to go around the box, and to provide an overlap of about two inches. Paper should extend beyond the end of the box no more than three-quarters of the depth.

Tape the lid to the box to prevent bulges, then lay the box upside down on the paper, being sure to center the pattern. Fold the paper around the box and seal. Miter the corners at the ends and seal.

Once your gifts are neatly wrapped, decorate them. Use sparkling glitter to spell out a person's name when you have used a solid color foil wrapping. Write the name with adhesive and then dust on the glitter.

DEAR HELOISE:
I have found away to keep my tablecloths clean for more than one evening. With four children, I cut open four thick plastic bags (not piffilm) and place one under each child's place setting and after meals just wipe it clean.

Anti-American Outburst Flares

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo recently offered Adoula arms. The AP—L. Gen. Louis W. Truman reports said Adoula accepted on led a U.S. military mission into condition that they be supplied in the Congo capital Friday and ran accordance with U.N. resolutions into an anti-American outburst by opposition members of Parliament.

Extreme nationalists charged the United States was conspiring with the United Nations to set up a military base in this primitive land, torn by internal strife since gaining independence in mid-1960. Premier Cyrille Adoula, whose shaky moderate regime has depended largely on United Nations support, was called upon by opponents to explain his government's position in the sudden American step.

Truman said at Leopoldville's Ndili Airport that he and his seven advisers had come to see what kind of U.S. military equipment would be useful to the 13,000-man U.N. task force in the Congo. The general said he expected to see Adoula. Defense Minister Jerome Anany, Congo army commander in chief Gen. Joseph Mobutu, and other high-ranking Congolese officers.

Truman said he was aware his mission coincided with "a time of particular difficulty" in the Congo and stressed the U.S. determination "to be of assistance in furthering the U.N. efforts in this area."

Truman, before leaving the United States, and U.S. Embassy sources here declared the mission does not foreshadow sending American troops to the Congo.

Truman's arrival followed persistent reports here that Soviet Ambassador Sergei Nemtchinov re-

SITS ON MONEY

Cashier In Bank Robbery Heroine

LONDON (AP) — Four gunmen set out to grab themselves a holiday bankroll from two British banks Friday.

The total loot was $840. The thieves fired four shots. A dog who chased the robbers bit a spectator instead.

Heroine of the piece was come Miss Dawn Cleaver, 28, cashier at one of the banks. Dawn saved a bundle of money by sitting on it.

"Miss Cleaver," said a spokesman for the bank, "is very self-reliant."

The gunmen first appeared at the Lloyds Bank branch in the Cricklewood district. They told everybody it was a holdup and to put up their hands. No one paid any attention, so one of the robbers fired a shot into the ceiling and grabbed $560 from a teller's cage. Then they all ran out.

A quarter of an hour later the same gunmen—first reports spoke of two gangs—showed up at a branch of the Midland Bank in the Kilburn area. One fired a shot to intimidate people. Miss Cleaver whisked a bundle of notes briskly off her counter and under her bustle.

The robbers grabbed what money they could see—a matter of $280—and fled.

A butcher across the street saw them come out and gave chase, waving a carving knife. A grocer urged his Alsatian dog on them but the animal took a dislike to a spectator and went for him instead.

Police motorcycle rider William Lucas closed with one of the robbers, who wormed loose and fired a shot that hit the heel of Lucas's shoe.

Another of the robbers took dead aim on something or other and shattered a shop window.

Police constable Frederick Gray pursued on a bicycle but the robbers piled into a car and got away.

Miss Cleaver took the banknotes out from under her and the bank resumed business as usual.

Another band held up a payroll truck in South London on this last big pay day before Christmas and got away with $3,360 belonging to a firm of instrument engineers.

Special Session Ends; Teacher Raises Okayed

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi Legislature Friday gave final approval to teacher pay and welfare benefits and adjourned its 6-week old special session.

The final day assured school teachers pay raises of up to $300 annually and the old and disabled needy of increased welfare aid, both effective July 1.

"I am well pleased," Gov. Ross Barnett commented as the lawmakers left the capitol. "They went along with me on all three major requests—reapportionment, teacher pay raises and increased welfare payments."

Barnett called the session Nov. 13 to consider reapportionment and the legislature finally approved a plan for a 122-member House and 52-member Senate, both taking population into account in the distribution of seats. It will come up for ratification by the people Feb. 5.

After clearing the reapportionment issue, the legislature received requests from the governor to consider teacher pay and welfare increases and lesser matters.

It took only minutes after the major items cleared finally for the legislature to adopt an adjournment hour of 11:45 p.m. Friday, then to recess until the time for adjournment. The extra time permits Barnett to sign bills into law while the legislature technically is in session, as the law requires.

Congo Mission Goals Outlined

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson declared Friday that the chief purpose of the United States in sending a military mission to the Congo is to bulwark Secretary-General U. Thant's plan to compel Katanga Province to end its secession.

The chief U.S. delegate made the statement at a news conference, where he predicted also agreement before Christmas between U.S. and Soviet negotiators on how to wind up U.N. aspects of the Cuban crisis.

Asked if there was any Soviet intervention or interference in the Congo, he replied: "As far as I know at the moment there isn't any whatever. I hope I am properly informed on that subject."

The query was prompted by reports from U.S. sources in Washington and elsewhere that the Soviet Union may be planning a new bid for power in the African nation.

Stevenson told a reporter later he had heard that the Soviet ambassador in Leopoldville had been trying to influence left-wing foes of Premier Cyrille Adoula, but that he didn't think the ambassador was having much success.

Stevenson opened the conference by reading a lengthy statement evaluating the just-concluded 17th session of the General Assembly.

In response to questions he said the objective of the U.S. military mission is to assess Thant's request for U.S. military equipment for the 18,000-man Congo force.

He said the objective had no political implications "beyond trying to do the best possible job we can with the most professional advice in order to fulfill our obligations to the secretary-general in discharge of this responsibility."

He gave no direct reply as to whether the United States would support use of force to enable the United Nations to end Katanga's secession.

He said it is in everyone's advantage to conclude the matter without use of force, and that Thant would employ force only in response to aggression.

"But the United States," he added, "and I don't believe any other country that has been involved in the Congo, wants to find a solution by force."

In regard to Cuba, Stevenson said the United States envisaged an end to the U.N. phase by filing statements or documents with the secretary-general. He said he did not expect any meeting of the Security Council on the matter.

He said he wanted to emphasize the wide area of agreement reached in the exchange of letters between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev that resulted in withdrawal of Soviet missiles and jet bombers from Cuba.

Stevenson said he was aware his mission coincided with "a time of particular difficulty" in the Congo and stressed the U.S. determination "to be of assistance in furthering the U.N. efforts in this area."

Truman, before leaving the United States, and U.S. Embassy sources here declared the mission does not foreshadow sending American troops to the Congo.

Truman's arrival followed persistent reports here that Soviet Ambassador Sergei Nemtchinov re-

Red Guards Get Shoot To Miss Yuletide Appeal

BERLIN (UPI)—The West Berlin municipal government Friday issued a Christmas appeal to Communist border guards to shoot to miss escaping East German refugees.

The appeal was made in huge placards erected by the city government all along the Berlin wall where the Communist guards could see them.

But a refugee was shot at twice and arrested by Communist guards Friday night when he tried to escape to the American sector of the city, West Berlin police reported.

The placards show a giant photograph of a People's policeman, standing wrapped in a winter cloak, on guard on the barbed-wire and concrete wall. Beneath the picture, tall letters spell out "I Aim Wide."

Similar pleas were made over radio and television programs beamed to East Berlin.

The Communist regime long ago issued standing orders to border guards to shoot escapees.

POLICE ACTIVITY

Traffic Mishaps, Stabbing Reported

Richard Lawrence Davis, 20, by Monroe police late Friday night, Jennings will also be charged with aggravated battery after he is released from the hospital, a license, following an accident at the intersection of South Grand Street and DeSiard Avenue, at 7:33 p.m.

According to officers Davis, traveling east on DeSiard, was making a right turn on to South Grand when he swung too wide and collided with an auto operated by Gus Pete Salinas Jr., 21, of 405 Dixie St., Monroe. Salinas, headed north on South Grand, was stopped in the left turn lane at the time of the mishap.

Larry T. Brooks, 21, of 200 Julia St., Rayville, was ticketed for reckless driving after an accident on Louisville Avenue near the intersection of North 16th Street. Officers stated that Brooks was attempting to leave the parking lot at Sears shopping center and proceed east on Louisville when he collided with a car driven by Diana Simmons, 19, of 3815 Gerald St., Monroe.

Mary F. Nichols, 30, of 1606 S. 3rd St., Monroe, complained of neck pains and was to see her private physician after the car that she was driving was involved in an accident the intersection of Louisville and North Eighth Street at 7:01 p.m. The other auto was driven by Rowena R. Guidry, 30, of 822 Bluebonnet St., Lake Charles. There were no charges.

Local law enforcement agencies were kept busy Friday investigating several traffic accidents and a stabbing incident, which resulted in a few minor injuries and charges.

James Jennings, 36, of 717 Wood St., Monroe, sustained a three inch stab wound in the right side of his abdomen in a local bar.

Jennings was rushed to St. Francis Hospital by Hixson Brothers' Funeral Home ambulance where he was to undergo surgery for the wound. Extent of the resulting injury was not known late Friday night, but it was not believed serious.

Witnesses told investigating officers that Jennings got in a fight while attempting to stop a fight between Robert Beasley and Mildred Cauthron.

A suspect was still being sought.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am so mad right now I am seeing red! I want to find out if my daughter did the right thing. She is 17 and her name is Annette. Three weeks ago Annette's best girl friend asked if she could borrow her floor-length formal for the prom. Annette had just broken up with her steady and had no hopes of going to the prom herself, so she said yes. The night before the prom one of the nicest boys at school called and asked Annette to the prom. She said no because she had promised her dress to her friend. I say she was a fool. She should have said YES and asked for her dress back. What do you say?

ANNETTE'S MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: I say you should be proud of a daughter who puts her promise to a friend above a date to the prom. Too bad Annette didn't think of "borrowing" a dress from another Cinderella who wasn't going to the ball.

DEAR ABBY: Do you have any suggestions on how to handle a 16-year-old son who threatens to beat you to death with his fists? I am 52 and can no longer handle him. I have had to back down from several challenges lately and it is undermining my position of authority. He reads your column. In fact, I think it's the only part of the paper he reads.

DEAR DAD: Apparently when you were bigger and stronger than your son, you controlled him by the threat of your physical strength. You taught him well that might made right. Now he is reacting to your own harsh form of discipline. Or he might be emotionally disturbed. Consult a doctor on how to re-establish normal relations with him.

DEAR ABBY: There is a boy at school who asks the girls if he can kiss them to see how their lipstick tastes. He says he can tell if their lipstick is expensive or cheap. What do you think of such a boy? He is in the 9th grade.

NINTH - GRADE GIRL
DEAR NINTH: When a boy wants a kiss, one excuse is as good as another. But if a girl lets an acknowledged "lipstick taster" get that close, the GIRL is cheap.

DEAR READERS: If you have sent for the pecan pie recipe I offered and have not as yet received it, please be patient. I have had over 100,000 requests.
